

Anthony Pedrotti

---

Emerging growth companies (EGCs) are powering innovation in the broader economy. We expect many of these startups to become dominant in their categories, or to create entirely new categories.

Startups place a premium on innovation in their own businesses, and they expect the same from the companies they work with, including their auditors.